Leyland's colour solutions benefit modern school

Leading paint brand Leyland Trade has delivered a lesson in effective colour combinations after it helped to bring the classrooms and corridors of a new state-of-the-art school to life

Contractor: Castle Painting Contractors Ltd

Task: The £21 million Sir William Stanier Community School in Crewe is an amalgamation of two schools from the south Cheshire area and is named after William Stanier, who helped to revolutionise steam locomotives in Crewe. The impressive new school recently opened its doors after the first phase of its development was completed and students were greeted with a myriad of inventive and bold colour solutions provided by Leyland.

Product: Decorators Castle Painting Contractors Ltd wasted little time in specifying Leyland products on the project, in particular the Acrylic Eggshell for its quick drying properties and the extensive range of colours available through Leyland's colour support services. These include a unique free colour matching service and colour schemes for the professional user, as well as in-store colour tinting machines that offer customers an incredible choice of over 16,000 colours.

Leyland's Acrylic Eggshell is ten times more durable than conventional Matt or Silk and offers a wide range of benefits. It is perfect for walls and ceilings in most interiors, particularly areas of high traffic such as school and college buildings. The colours, which included the striking Blind Date and classical Flowering Cherry, added a distinct sense of personality to the classrooms, while the colours in the hallways and staircases were specified to aid directionality throughout the building.

Background: Sean McLoughlin, Director of Castle Painting Contractors Ltd had been impressed with Leyland's products and service on previous jobs and had little hesitation in using them again. He said:

"I've always been incredibly happy with the performance of Leyland's products in the past and even happier with the fact that they come in at a competitive price. There's no need to look anywhere else when Leyland ticks all the boxes. The local Johnstone's Leyland Decorating Centre in Crewe provided excellent customer service and ensured the project ran smoothly to the six-month deadline thanks to the daily deliveries we had."
